Rose Coghlan's Marriage.

The portion of society which prides itself upon knowing all about the private history of public people was much surprised and annoyed yesterday by the announcement that Miss Rose Coghlan had become a married lady. The announcement fell with great force upon a number of handsome gentlemen who have long haunted Wallace's Theatre and sighed in vain over the fair actress. On Friday morning Miss Coghlan, accompanied by a gentleman, left her cozy flat at No. 79 West Fifty-second street, and rode in her brougham to the Oakland Street Ferry. Crossing the ferry she and the gentlemen were driven to the Sunset Street Protestant Episcopal church. There they met a prominent professional gentleman who is a friend of Mr. Charles Coghlan, and who kindly officiated as Miss Coghlan's father pro tem. The ceremony having been performed the happy couple returned to this city with the matrimonial father and had a wedding breakfast on the fat of the land. The married couple then went home to Miss Coghlan's flat, where they have been living in peaceful seclusion ever since. The gentleman who will hereafter be the head of Miss Coghlan's family is Mr. Clinton C. Edgerly. He is a son of Col. Edgerly, general manager of the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company. Mr. Edgerly resides in Boston, and is a well-to-do member of the bar of that city. He and Miss Coghlan have been acquainted for some time, and the marriage was not a sudden movement. Miss Coghlan said last night, while hastening to her dressing room after the second act, that the reason why her marriage had taken place in Jersey City, and had not been announced before, was that she wished to keep it quiet until her arrangements were completed for her starring tour next season. The attractiveness of an actress is supposed to be lessened when she marries, and Miss Coghlan did not wish to be affected in this way. "I do not think, however," she said, "that it will affect me at all, but my professional friends, yes, he's a lawyer. Funny, isn't it? He was a Boston man, but now he's in New York. This will not interfere with my arrangements for next season in any way. None of the people in the theatre knew anything about the marriage till to-day. Of course, they are all surprised." Miss Coghlan's acting was watched last evening by a fairly large audience, in which were several of those who have hitherto been known as great admirers of the lady.—World.

O. K. G.

A musical play, sketch, farce, burlesque or travesty, whatever one may choose to call it, is now in course of rehearsal by a company of society amateurs, and will form the next attraction in a local way. The plot, dialogue, music and all are original, and have been woven together by a gentleman of considerable stage experience, with a view to exhibiting the talents of the various amateurs engaged in it. The music has been selected from the most popular operas, and is now being arranged by Professor Careless.

O. K. G. are the initials of a mysterious individual who figures materially in the play under the euphonious name of Gigglefally. In his youth he has been enamored of a tender maiden whose revolving years have now settled into Auntie Whiffles—a character of the old maid type. Fate has turned them for a good many years, and it is the terror which this lady inspires by her visit to her brother and niece, her romantic allusions to her O. K. G., and her final discovery of him in the person of one who combines photography and dentistry in a lonely spot on the Hudson, visited by Auntie Whiffles and a picnic party—which form the principal incidents of the play. There are also some side plots, and several characters not mentioned above, which fit naturally into the story and contribute to its humor. A drill by twenty-one little girls forms the denouement. Following is the cast of characters:

Alma Belmont, daughter of John Belmont. Mrs. Birdie Cummings. Willie Irving, niece of John Belmont. Miss Mary Allen. Lucille Granger, a friend of Alice's. Miss Lona Young. Harold Russell, another friend of Alice's. Miss Ivie Clawson. Little Ripple, niece of Fred. Scawampy, Miss Clara Morris. Miss Sophia Whiffles, aunt from New Hampshire. Walter Clawson. Emma Smithers, with genuine cropcut. John Weston, nephew of John Belmont. J. T. White. Fred. Smith, another nephew of John Belmont. Fred. Clawson. Miss Belmont, a retired actress. Sel. Clawson. Fred. Scawampy. Africanus. Richard Hall, still another friend of John Belmont. Will. Squires. John Smith, a great inventor and genius. Charles Whitney.

Authors and Dramatists.

A collection of plays written by Charles Dickens, recently published, shows him as the author of some half a dozen sketchy pieces, each of which takes the advantage of a private presentation to the public, and yet no one of them has succeeded in maintaining its position on the stage. Sir Walter Scott's dramatic career was less fortunate, for his dramatic efforts never saw the footlights. In the circumstances the two great novelists are concerned, while they failed as dramatists proper, certain of their plays on the acting list to this day. Although many of the chief British dramatists have attempted the stage, there is not an example on record of a successful writer who has been the author of a successful novel and a successful play of the first-class.—Mirror.

When the Mirror wrote the above it no doubt had in mind, besides the two authors it mentions, the recent success achieved by Wilkie Collins and Charles Reade's dramatic productions; but it surely overlooked Sir Edward Bulwer Lytton. Very few instances of dramatic art, we fancy, can be furnished superior to the Lady of Lyons, Richieu and Money; yet the author of these plays wrote Eugene Aram, Rienzi and the Last Days of Pompeii.

Thomas Concerts.

The visit of Theodore Thomas' orchestra to San Francisco is now a settled fact, and, from May 28th to June 3d the great conductor will direct a musical festival in that city. He will be accompanied by the famous soprano Materna, a singer who ought by all means to be heard in our Tabernacle. What will be done about it? Are any of our managers or musicians inclined to take the matter in hand? With the present musical feeling, there would be no difficulty in obtaining a chorus of 500 voices, and with Prof. Careless to head them a considerable work could be conquered in time for the event. Five hundred local singers headed by Materna, and accompanied by the world famous Thomas orchestra, would be an event in our musical annals which would overshadow anything ever previously attempted.

Peck's Bad Boy.

This show brought its Salt Lake engagement to a conclusion last evening. Its two nights were not such as can afford one much pleasure in looking back upon. We marvel how anything so bad as Peck's Bad Boy can find people to travel with it; how it can find a house to receive it, or a railroad to transport it. Its humor is of the kind which causes one to shudder, and its ingenuity of the nature which adorns Mother Goose rhymes, or children "playing at theatre."

Notes.

SOL SIEGEL says: Ristort audiences in San Francisco often ran as low as fifty people.

ALMA STUART STANLEY, in "Paintin' er Red," has applied for dates at the Theatre.

BONAVENTURE opens in San Francisco to-morrow night, supported by her son and daughter.

BARTLEY CAMPBELL is to rewrite "The Willow Copse" for the combination that is to support C. W. Conlock next season.

THE NEXT attraction at the Theatre will be the Silver King; Walter Bentley plays the part in which Salt Lake formerly saw Osmond Tearle. The company is one of Harry Miner's.

SHADOWS of a Great City has applied for dates at the theatre. Lewis Morrison is advance agent and the leading actor of the company, facts which indicate the success of the piece in this city.

SAN FRANCISCO is working herself up over the coming of May Blossom with Georgia Cayvan, Jos. Wheelock and Ben McGinley in the cast. Strange to say, we hear nothing of them in Salt Lake. Will they give us the "go by?"

CAMPBELL is working with fashionable amateurs in San Francisco and on the 15th and 16th will present "Le Nozze de Figaro." Mozart's delightful opera, at the Grand Opera House; himself as Almaviva. Campbello's success will always be good news to Salt Lake.

MRS. J. SIEGEL recently appeared in The Doctor of Alcantara, a popular light opera, with an amateur society in Baltimore, assuming the character of Inez. The work "caught on" immensely there, and Mrs. Siegel has intimated in several letters that she hoped the opera might be attempted by the gifted amateurs of this city.

SARDON, the author of "Fedora" is 55 years old and is probably the richest living author or dramatist. He claims to owe his first idea of "Fedora" to an intrigue related in the history of Philip II, in which the monarch and his secretary, Antonio Perez, figured conspicuously. Sardon originally laid the scene of the play in this country in the time of George Washington, but afterward changed it to St. Petersburg.

A Respected Man Gone.

There died last week, Mr. Isaac Jennings, erst butcher of Smallbrook street, a good citizen, and a most upright and honorable tradesman. An incident in Mr. Jennings' early career is worthy of note, and may now be cited as a bright example to others. He commenced business many years ago in a small way, and by dint of thrift and industry did well. When in a way of business he fell upon evil days, and by adverse trade and unfortunate speculation was compelled to call his creditors together and offer a composition, which was readily accepted. Thus relieved and nothing daunted, Mr. Jennings began the world afresh, and after many years of patient toil success once more crowned his efforts, and he found his affairs in a flourishing condition. But in this later time of prosperity he was not unmindful of the obligations of bygone years. A meeting of all his former creditors was called at the old Woolpack Hotel, and every man had the gratification of receiving the balance of his claim, making good his full share in the pound due. It is pleasant to record this honorable act as a tribute to the memory of a kindly and honest man, who in times of distress was ever ready to aid the suffering and extend a helping hand, which was never empty.—Birmingham Daily Gazette, April 18th.

Marshal Ireland's Rules at the Pen.

SALT LAKE CITY, May 2, 1885.

To the Editor of THE HERALD:

The Tribune yesterday morning told of a "reception" given John Aird at the Penitentiary on Friday last, in which he was treated to a little hanging in a modified form by the inmates of the institution. It seems to be a practice out there to indulge in these little invitations when a new comer appears, at least publication is made of two or three such instances. It is not our intention to defend Aird, but does it not seem a little strange that the person who has charge of the Pen. should stand by and permit such outrageous practices to be indulged in? Does not the law give the prisoner protection? Is not the officer in whose charge the prisoner is consigned required to protect his man? If the Territorial Penitentiary were kept by Mormons and such proceedings allowed, there would be a howl from the editors of the sheet mentioned loud enough to shake the surrounding hills. CITIZEN.

MASQUERADE SURPRISE PARTY

The "New Door" Puzzle—Progressive Euchre—Its Hold Upon Society—Other Notes.

Society Coquetting with Keno.

The society people of Washington are quite as original as Gray-Parker with his "turf wedding," where the gentlemen all wore racing colors. "Rag-baby" parties and "tissue paper" parties are common this season, but perhaps the most peculiar feature in such things just now is the "loto" party. Loto, it should be understood, is supposed to be a mild sort of children's game, but it is nothing more nor less than "keno," sugar-coated, with a new name and parlor attachments. It is played with the old-time keno cards, but, to remove some of the suspicious features, the numbers are shaken up in a bag, instead of the old keno "urn," and for the usual balls small numbered blocks are substituted. Of course, it would be quite improper for a young lady to invite her friends to join her in a game of keno in her father's parlor, but it certainly is quite the thing just now to announce a "loto party with prizes." For instance, only a day or two ago a local paper announced that Miss So and So was to give a loto party on such a night, on which occasion the prizes would be very antique and costly.—Ex.

MARRIED.

At Home: Third Street, Logan City, After May 8th, 1885

The Puzzle.

The new puzzle published in these columns last Sunday, attracted considerable attention during the past week, and indeed the interest has not abated by any means. The first at hand with a correct solution was Mr. B. W. E. Jennings, and he was closely followed by Mr. Phil Margetts, who in his usual beaming style, imparted the secret to the junior member of the staff, with additional information that he had left half of his family at home figuring on it. Business at the telephone office is said to have been impeded to some extent during the early part of the week, but with what result we have not as yet been informed. Fred. W. Cleghorn, of West Jordan; Joel Ricks, of Provo; Hyrum S. Schofield, of the Deseret University; and E. S. Wright, of this city, have also been heard from with the correct solution, while a number of others have not been so fortunate.

Surprise En Masque.

A very enjoyable surprise party was held at the residence of Mrs. Frank Pascoe on Friday evening last, the occasion being the anniversary of her birthday. The affair was royally managed by Messrs. Arthur Day, W. Edmonds, D. J. Griffiths, W. Husbands, and J. Hilton, in company with their respective ladies. It is perhaps needless to say a very enjoyable evening was spent in dancing, singing, recitations, etc. Among the pleasant features was the recitation by Miss Lizzie Thomas.

Notable amongst well sustained characters were: Mr. D. J. Griffiths, as Deck of Cards, Mrs. A. A. Needham and Miss Lizzie Thomas, as French Peasant Girls, Miss Sadie Thomas, as an Artist, Mrs. W. L. Price as Cinderella, Miss Eliza Pascoe as "The Wild Flower of Mexico," Mrs. J. Price, as a Page, Mrs. A. J. Edmonds, as a Flower Girl, Miss J. C. Pascoe, as an Italian Princess, Miss Mary Larson, Queen of the Maze, Miss Lucy Goodfellow, Queen of the Fairies, E. A. Pascoe, as a Jester, Wm. Husbands, as the Wandering Jew, J. Day, as Dollie Varden, W. L. Price, as a Spanish gentleman, F. J. P. Pascoe as an Oriental M. D., won over the ladies by administering to them his magic pills which not only change age to youth, but the hair to any hue. J. Lucas, as a Quaker, S. Hilton, as a Spanish Grandee, J. Thomas, as a dupe from Merthyr Tydvil, B. W. Jennings as Friar Laurence, J. Davis, some said was a bear and some a bull. Wm. Husbands, Jr., was awarded the leather medal for his personifications of Old Dobbs, the well known fruit vendor. W. Edmonds was excellent as a Chinaman. D. J. Griffiths, as a high toned New York Bobby.

H. E. Craig, as a Hoosier School-master, John Price, as a Prince, Tom Feeney, as Prince Arthur, John Tillet, as a Spanish nobleman, Charles Larson, as an Indian Chief.

The Reigning Craze.

Progressive Euchre continues at an unabated rate, and is spreading like an epidemic. The latest and most brilliant was given at the residence of ex-Mayor Little Wednesday evening when from fifty to seventy-five people sat down to the tables. A list of the prizes has not reached us, but Milt Barratt is reported to have remained at the head table until he grew ashamed, when he voluntarily went down.

A SMALL but very pleasant progressive euchre party was given by Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Young on Thursday evening.

Judicial Tergiversation.

SALT LAKE CITY, May 2, 1885. To the Editor of THE HERALD.

If I mistake not, Judge Zane has given not less than four rulings, in four different cases, all the rulings defining his views of the meaning of unlawful cohabitation, each having its own little variation. Now which ruling should be considered the authoritative one? Must we take the last for our guide? Or must we take the mean of all four, if such mean can possibly be obtained? If not, is this fourth the last, the final and irrevocable ruling? Or may other varying rulings be expected to follow? If so, how many, and when shall we get them all? Or does he design to give a different and special explanatory ruling in each particular case? This thing is getting a little more misty than ever. It must be very nebulous in his own eyes. It is about as clear as mud to the understanding of the general public. It smacks of the penny showman's method, "Now you see it, and now you don't." But mostly we don't, and I question if the Judge does. Meantime, what is unlawful cohabitation? What is it safe to do, and where is it safe to be? What is the correct thing in this pesky cohab. business? If a man cannot live in the same house and sit at the same table with his own wife, can he with his sister, or his mother, or his grandmother? If not, then why not? I should very much like to know. Not that I care so much about pleasing the Judge, but then I want to do the right thing. A. B. C.
